NEVADA CITY —

Sportmen's Paradise

WHERE, WHEN and HOW THEY'RE BITING
and Other Sportsmen's Items

Lake fishing this week was not very good in Nevada county, according to most of our reliable sources. The hot weather kept the fish deep and full moon brought them up for feeding at night leaving them sated in the daylight hours.

Most of the fishing experts concur it will be another week before the fishing will begin to improve.

Who said there are no fish in Deer creek? T. A. Hradek of Grass Valley gave us visible proof to the contrary. He brought into The Nugget a 5-pound 30-inch eastern brook trout he had caught below Nevada City over the week-end. Using a 2½-pound test leader and salmon eggs for bait it took Hradek half an hour to land the critter. Hradek said he caught a 21-inch trout in the same general location of Deer creek a few days earlier.

Frank Latch, 70, Los Angeles, dropped dead at 6:15 p.m. Wednesday as he was setting camp table for himself and R. C. Shields, also of Los Angeles, at Lake Spaulding where the two were on a two-weeks' fishing vacation. Latch was of heavy build and the altitude was 5000 feet. His body is at the Myers Grass Valley mortuary awaiting shipment to Los Angeles.

There were 309,090 fish taken during the month of May by patrons of party boats operating from nearly every harbor and pier along the California coast.

The monthly report compiled by the marine fisheries laboratory of the division of fish and game shows 68,552 sportsmen went ocean fishing on 272 party boats.

Fish and game commission has announced the liberation of 1,027 Chinese pheasants during the week of June 18 to 24.

Part of Mendocino county's share of fines paid by violators of the fish and game code is being used to provide better fishing in the many streams of the area.

The board of supervisors, at the suggestion of local sportsmen, have again hired Harlan Nichols to rescue stranded fish in drying streams for transplanting in "live" waters. During summer and fall months, he will patrol streams of the Eel, Russian, and Navarro watersheds.

Salmon and steelhead trout rescue equipment is provided by the division of fish and game. When large numbers of fish are to be transferred, the regular rescue crew of the bureau of fish conservation is brought into action.

Single-handed, Nichols last year rescued 118,000 fish, while division personnel in the area accounted for an additional 317,000 fish.

Modoc county streams received a planting of 48,000 rainbow trout from the Burney creek hatchery during the month of May, it is reported by the division of fish and game.

The annual salmon derby will be held on Humboldt bay in Humboldt county, July 15, 16, and 17.

LINDSAY WILL EXPLAIN WATER RIGHTS AUG. 1

Francis Lindsay, district assemblyman, will appear before the Nevada county board of supervisors an dthe directors and officers of the Nevada Irrigation District in the NID offices in Grass Valley Monday, Aug. 1 and explain water rights, one of California's main problems. Lindsay will further press his suggestion the county join the Mountain Counties Water Conservation association recently formed at Jackson and which plants to include the eight central mountain counties of California.

Lindsay is also asking for a three-cent tax, to be assessed against general county tax, to raise approximately $7,000 in Nevada county. One cent would be used for legal assistance and lobbying in Sacramento and Washington, the other two would be allocated for proving water rights, water use surveys and filings.

Lindsay introduced AB 401 into the assembly. It would have permitted mountain counties to operate power plants to finance irrigation projects. The bill, after passing the lower house failed to pass the senate in a 17-17 vote. Senator Harold Johnson of this senatorial district, and H. E. Dillinger of El Dorado county were among the dissenters.

The assemblyman said the group of counties would be in a better position to oppose encroachment by the federal bureau of reclamation.

HOUSE OKAYS OPENING OF POWER RESERVE TO MINING DEVELOPMENT

The house of represenatives has passed and sent to the senate a bill to open to mining location approximately 7,000,000 acres of public lands withdrawn or reserved for power development.

The measure, introduced by Congressman Clair Engle of the second district, was initially requested by a joint committee of the Western Mining Council and Hydraulic Miners association of California of which Wendell Robie of Auburn is chairman.

Engle said the bill with one or two exceptions places all lands withdrawn for power purposes under the general mining laws. The measure provides that a miner will have no recourse against the government if his claim should be flooded or otherwise damaged by a future power development. Copies of the usual claim location and notice of assessment work filed with the county recorder are to be filed with the nearest district land office.

The congressman said if the bill becomes law thousands of additional acres in the second district will be thrown open to mining, much of it potentially good gold mining property.

HOUSE PASSES $150 PER CAPITA PAYMENT TO STATE INDIANS

The house of representatives has passed a bill, introduced by Congressman Clair Engle of the second district, to authorize a $150 per capita payment to the Indians of California from a $6,000,000 fund now in the U. S. treasury resulting from a judgment the Indians were granted in a claim suit against the government. The money belongs to the Indians. A maximum of 27,500 Indians will receive payments under the bill which was favorably recommended by the bureau of Indian affairs. The bill will save approximately $200,000 per annum now being paid by the government as interest on the judgment. In considering the house committee on public lands tentatively rejected a proposal by the department of interior to establish a revolving loan fund with the money remaining from the judgment after per capita payments have been made.

WILLOWSPRINGS GARAGE, BAR ARE DESTROYED

Fire, which for a time threatened the entire community of North San Juan Tuesday afternoon, destroyed the Willow Springs garage, service station, bar and living quarters. The fire which started at 3:15 was spectacular, and could be seen for miles, and the danger was heightened by exploding gas and oil tanks. Two of three underground gas tanks went up.

Damage was estimated at $9,000, partly covered by insurance.

The building was owned by Clarence Briggs, Grass Valley. Roy Caster, operating the bar and managing the building, suffered minor burns about the face but was not hospitalized. Art Gallez and Bill Innes subleased the garage and service station. All equipment, supplies, and personal belongings in the building were lost.

Three crews of the state division of forestry and one from the Tahoe national forest service, aided by volunteer fire fighters from North San Juan fought the blaze under the direction of Lew Moran, of the Nevada City office of the state division. The national forest crew came from Camptonville while the three state crews were called from North Columbia, Shady Creek and Nevada City.

Moran said the fire apparently started underneath the floor of living quarters in the rear of the bar. A power pole burned disrupting service for a short while.

Sheriff Richard W. Hoskins' office is investigating the fire.

ROWE ASKS RENT AND POSSESSION OF REAL ESTATE IN ACTION

Clarence B. Rowe filed suit in Nevada county superior court against Hilda Caddy, both of Grass Valley, on a complaint for rent and possession of premises in Boston Ravine, Grass Valley. Rowe charges the defendant took possession of property and collected rental of $300 since September, 1948, of the estate of Rowe's aunt, Emma Truscott Crase.

Rowe asks for judgment of $100 plus the $300 rentals.

Frank G. Finnegan, Nevada City, is attorney for planitiff.

IT'S A GOOD FEELING

Have you had that feeling of satisfaction that comes with, for instance, the replacement of sputtering jalopy, with a dream boat of a car, not necessarily a Cadillac, but a good serviceable vehicle? Well, that's how The Nugget staff feels this week.

After a lot of delays and false starts and a day of work by the P. G. & E. power crew to give us three-phase power, The Nugget has its Miehle vertical printing press in operation. Tuesday afternoon the Miehle produced as much commercial printing as the old creaking, groaning hand press could do in three days.

The Nugget invites its readers and customers to drop in and watch the press in operation. It's almost human the way mechanical fingers go this way and that way, a thingamabob goes around, and the printing comes out, finer and faster.

All in all, it's a graaaand and glorious feeling.

ILLITERATE EDUCATOR

The Cherokee Indian tribe once spread over both Carolinas and large parts of Alabama and Georgia. After white men came to America, they, like all other Indians, had constant trouble. By the early 1800's, their once large empire was greatly reduced, both in size and population.

They had forsworn the warpath and were trying to become agricultural people. Realizing the need for knowledge, they had begged missionaries to settle among them and educate their children. Schools were established and children received instruction in the white man's ways. Yet three-fourths of the tribe remained illiterate.

Among this ignorant majority was a young man named Sequoyah. He was born about 1770, son of a Cherokee woman and a German peddler named Gist. His English name was George Guest, derived from Gist. "Sequoyah" means "guessed it."

Sequoyah lived as an Indian and never learned English. He was a natural artist, being both a skilled silversmith and painter of animals. The white man's magic of writing and printing fascinated him and he resolved the Cherokees should have such a magic of their own. The unlettered Indian then set about devising an alphabet!

Like other pioneers of human progress, Sequoyah was suspected of witchcraft and received abuse, even from his own wife. He toiled for long, lonely years, only to have all his papers burned by the stupid woman, during his absence. Sequoyah shrugged off this misfortune heroically, but did leave the wretched shrew. He went to Arkansas, in order to work in peace.

In 1821, he came back; with a complete alphabet of eighty-six characters, finished after twelve years of single-handed labor. He had furnished a symobl for each basic Cherokee syllable. Some were taken from the English alphabet, others looked like Chinese or Hebrew characters, but all were ideal for the purpose.

The tribe was incredulous at first, but doubters were soon convinced. Cherokees, young and old, rapidly learned to read.

The people soon became the most advanced of all North American Indian tribes. By 1825, the tribal council voted to buy a press and type, for establishment of a newspaper. The difficulties were enormous. The hand press and fonts of type had to be sent from Boston to New Echota, Georgia, much of the way by wagon. Paper was hard to get, and type cases had to be made by white printers who didn't understand the type they were using. Because of this, the printers received $400 a year; the Indian editor $300.

In spite of all handicaps, the weekly, four-page Cherokee Phoenix appeared on February 21, 1828. Printed partly in English and party in Sequoyah's alphabet, it drew subscribers from several states and at least one from Germany. After the Phoenix was successful, Cherokee laws, school books, and hymns, all appeared, in type everyone could comprehend.

The tribe gave Sequoyah a silver medal and other honors, but he remained with them only until the alphabet was adopted. Then he returned to the Arkansas country. His achievement was more than a mere invention. He really ranks with the unknown geniuses who gave man the wheel and the bow and arrow, for he was ignorant as a caveman when he began his work.

When he was well past seventy, he heard of a "lost tribe" of Cherokees supposedly living in Mexico. The dauntless old man set forth in search of these lost brothers and while on that journey, he died. Ironically, the tribal council voted his hen-pecking wife an annual pension!

Today, the huge noble trees of California fittingly bear the name of this great man. The spelling has been slightly changed to "Sequoia."

Just Wonderin'

I Wonder about scientists
And all the things they do,
To make this world a better place
For me and likewise you.

This would have been a sorry world indeed, had it not been for the men of science, who have, in all ages worked with the laws of evolution for the betterment of man.

True scientists have been men of indomitable determination and unshakable courage—they had to be, if they were to function in a society that invariably was "agin 'em. To every innovation proposed by the patient scientist, the can't chorus began to chant. For some reason or other, the human animal fears and hates change; he shrinks from change in his modes and manners of living, he dreads to exchange his old opinions for new ones and so every discovery of science, the stand patters have shouted, "that's not true, nothing like that is humanly possible," and the poor scientist is forced to tread an upward path filled with obstacles of unbelief, ridicule and in many cases persecution.

Despite lack of appreciation, through dense fogs of ignorance and super superstition, the scientist works on and gradually a hostile world accepts his gifts and in due time wonders how humanity ever got along without them.

For the greater part, the laws of evolution work slowly and silently, but often times a man or a group of men rises up to work with them and then the beneficent processes are hastened and the uninitiated howl.

It seems strange to those who live in this progressive age, that Copernicus, Bruno and Galileo were denounced for their scientific discoveries and achievements, yet such was the case and such has been the case with almost every scientific advancement since. Sometime, perhaps very soon, the scientists of Palomar will make revolutionary discoveries of some sort or another and we shall hear the same old chorus of derision and disbelief begin their age old Anvil Chorus. People are indeed funny.

Let us consider the fact that evolution is an irresistible force and that in due time its plans are unfolded and take place in the world about us. Why not work with this great force? Burbank did and we admire the results of the partnership every time we attend a flower show or eat a Burbank potato.

I once possessed a colored chart which traced the evolution of the flower from the simple four petaled blossom found by scientists as they examined prehistoric rocks to the gorgeous displays of life and beauty with which we are so familiar today. The rocks do not lie; imbedded within ancient stratas are indisputable evidences of the slow processes of nature and these the scientist studies and explains in due time, if we will but listen.

Scientists working many times alone, unaided and against great opposition have wrought greatly for the betterment of humanity. The ignorant, the intolerant may for a time impede these tasks of progress, but in the end the true scientist is vindicated and one by one his detractors are forced to admit their errors.

There is something unique and different about the scientific brain. Let's admit that right now and elect a few scientists to the Senate. Why not? Lawyers, agriculturists, business men, we have a plethora of them in the halls of state, let's get a few scientific minds to cope with our domestic and international problems. I believe they would delve deep and come up with some illuminating, perhaps revolutionary answers.

Gentlemen:

Your editorial on the gold question of June 24th has come to my attention. I very much appreciate your comment on this matter as well as taking the space in your paper as you did on page 3 to show your readers what we are up against. Very often Senator McCarran and I are criticized for not getting action faster on our gold bills by people who simply do not know what the problem is. Anyone reading the letters from the various governmental departments set forth in your paper can readly see that getting this legislature through is not an easy matter.

Incidentally, I also noted your editorial entitled "We Don't Like It." I have never heard of a federal agency asking for the political affiliation of the people running the newspaper. If that kind of inquiry is supposed to be helpful to the Democratic party I am sure someone is sadly mistaken because it will have exactly the opposite effect.

Sincerely yours,
CLAIR ENGLE, M. C.

GOLD DIGGER'S TRAIL

Charles Scott Haley

In the meantime, I was having a wonderful time. Every evening, a group of Peruvian cronies and myself would drift down to Morris Bar, the American bar of Lima, and have a few Pizco punches. These are calculated to raise the standard of optimism in the coldest of bloods. Then we would call for one or two cars, and ride up and down and around the Exposition—the widest and most beautiful street in Lima— for half an hour or more in the cool of the evening. Then into the grounds of the park itself, and to the best dining room in Lima, about nine. Here a group of us would sit until eleven o'clock enjoying a wonderfully good meal of great variety, and down with some of the best wines I have ever enjoyed. All the time, I would be trying to build my fences in a legitimate way, and to get information as to what Congress proposed doing in furthering the programs authorized by Leguia.

In addition to this, I spent much time at the local theater and in the Opera House, polishing my Spanish and training my ear. It is fairly easy to learn to speak Spanish fluently, but to understand it when spoken is much more of an art. The Peruvians speak excellent Castillian for the most part, but they speak it so rapidly that the cascading of sonorous syllables upon Northern ears is almost overwhelming in its speed until those same ears had months of practice in catching their import.

I had one or two very amusing experiences while engaged in this form of education. One evening, I was watching a performance of La Argentina—a famous dancer of her time—who was stopping at the same hotel as I for her season in Lima. I was sitting a trifle away from the others in the audience, by chance, and when she finished the Dance of Seville, which is done with a rose held in her mouth, she honored me by flinging the rose directly in my arms. No, it was not a mistake. She was really a very good shot. But the fact that she had chosen an outlander like myself for the honor almost caused me two duels the following day, for she was the city's idol.

Once when I was coming out of the hotel with a group of my Peruvian friends, we were beset by a score of American "trippers" who had come in from New York on a pleasure cruise. At that time—the beginning of our prohibition era—the average tripper was chiefly bent on a wild drunk for several weeks.

This was not true of all, but of far too many to make a favorable impression on the Latin, who does not like to see his women drunk. In this partciular case, I felt like administering a sound kicking to every member of this particular group, male or female. Their conversation was insulting, and I knew that many of the people in hearing could understand English quite well.

Red-faced and humiliated, I watched them pile out of the bar room and tumble into the cabs which were to take them back to their ship. Although my companions courteously refrained from noticing my embarrassment, I could not refrain from heated comment.

"Are these, then, real North Americans?" inquired one of my friends, a young lieutenant in the Peruvian navy.

"No, by Heaven! No more than your drunken Quichuas are real Peruvians," I replied.

"But those are poor—beasts of the field—you can expect no more of them. These men are well dressed, and the women seem as if they might be other than women of the streets. Why does your government permit them to insult our hospitality, my friends?"

I made the universal gesture associated with money in Latin countries. "The steamship company makes it—your company as well as ours. Your hotels and liquor dealers make it. These poor fools are milked at every turn, and they are kept drunk on your liquor— at a price. Is it not so?"

I had him there. He shrugged his shoulders, and remarked, "Well, whatever the gain, there is a loss to both our countries. Anyhow, we know you are not that sort. And there must be more at home like you. So let's go have our evening cocktail."

Which we did, to get the taste out of both of our mouths.

Another time, I had gone up to the Cercle Francais with a young English friend of mine, a member of the Casa Grace. He told me that most of the members were of French descent or origin, but a few Americans and Englishmen were allowed as guests. After dinner together, we went into the smoking room, and I found that a fellow countryman was making himself very conspicuous—he was of the sort who could not hold his liquor—in telling in no uncertain terms how Uncle Sam had won the war for the French and British. All eyes gradually turned to him as his voice rose in tempo and the member who had inadvisedly brought him in was literally shrinking from the scorn on the faces of his fellow members.

Finally, he looked around and saw me, and dragged me into the affair, as a fellow countryman. My British companion saw my disgust, but slyly whispered, "I can't help it, old chap. He's one of yours, you know," and maliciously smiled at me.

HOW TO MAKE SIX DOZEN LAMP CHIMNEYS OUT OF 12 OLD BOTTLES

By Ellis Parker Butler

Wan day whin Oi was afther rummagin in me cellar, Oi found wan dozen champagne bottles goin t'waste, an' 'twas a pitty t' see thim go t'waste. Oi tuck a look at thim an' Oi seen they was all in good condishin, exceipt they was full of champagne-wather.

Puttin th' twilv bottles t' wan soid, Oi wint inta th' back yar-r-d where th' grapevine do be, an' from th' grapevine Oi tuck wan av thim long curley tendrils. A frind av mine happened t' be th' Presidint av th' United States Steel Company, an' Oi sint him th' long curley tindril, and Oi said, 'Wud he make me a duplicate av it in timpered steel' Shure he was glad t' accomydate me, becase wance me old man was afther buyin a share av steel stock from him whin no wan seemed t' want anny. 'Twas not six wakes whin Oi resayved back from th' Presidint of th' Steel Trust th' timpered steel imitashin of th' curley tindril av th' grapevine.

On ta th' upper ind av this, an crossways, 'twas no trick at all t' fix a clothespin. Oi thin pressed th' sharp point av th' steel tendril inta th' cork av wan of th' champagne bottles, an twisted th' tendril around. Thin by pullin sharp upward on th' clothespin, an at the same time houldin th' bottle toight batwane me knees—which Oi had covered with rosin to prevint th' bottle slippin—Oi drew out th' cork Oi laid th' cork t' wan soid an emptid th' contins av th' bottle down th' drain, exipt a small tumblerfull which Oi drank.

Oi thin removed th' cork from another bottle an imptid contints down th' drain, ixcipt a small tumblerful which I also drank.

Oi thin removed th' cork from another bottle, an imptied th' continse down th' drain, ixcept a small tumblerful, which Oi drank.

Oi thin removed another bottle from th' cork, an imptied th' drain down th' continse, excipt a small tumblerful which Oi drank.

Oi thin removed another drain from th' contints, and emptied th' small cork down th' tumblerful, excipt a bottle which Oi drank.

Oi thin bottled another small remove from the tumbler—excipt a small corkful which Oi drained—an contensed th' drank down th' bottle.

Thim bottles was now all impty, an Oi steadied th' house wid wan hand an counted th' bottles wid th' other.

There was twinty siven left out ave th' dozen! Thin Oi got me a scrubbin brush an a pail av warther t' clane th' bottle, but t' me surprize Oi found Oi cud not git th' brush into th' neck av th' bottles, Oi therefore turned th' twinty siven bottles wrong side out, an scrubbed thim well an turned thim roight side out agin.

Be this toime th' house was revolving rapid, and I sat on th' flure and countid th' bottles as they wint by. There was 64 av thim.

Oi clumb t' th' kitchin table an projuced out av th' drawer th' can-opener, on th' hind legs av which was a glass cutter.

Oi crept back ceerfully t' th' bottles, an seated meself in the cinter av thim, an thim going round me continuous. By pritindin indifferance t' thim, an springin at thim whin they was off their guard, Oi was able t' catch wan at a toime. Whin Oi had thus caught a bottle Oi held it firmly down—by lyin on it, and wid th' glass cutter Oi cut off th' bottom an neck av it. These Oi put t' wan soid, an what remind av th' bottle made an excillint lamp chimney. When Oi counted thim Oi found Oi had sivinty two.

Daughter of Pioneer County Residents Is Visitor in District

Mrs. Walter W. Smith has returned to her home in Puente after visiting several days here at the scenes of activities of her mother, grandfather and great-grandfather, early Nevada City residents.

Her mother was Mary Marsellus, a reigning belle of the city in the 1880's. Her mother met her father, Louie Vignes of Los Angeles, at a costume ball at the National hotel given in 1887 by Laurel Parlor, Native Daughters of the Golden West, and Hydraulic Parlor, Native Sons of the Golden West. Her parents returned to Nevada City and the National hotel to observe their silver wedding anniversary in 1913.

Edwin P. Marsellus was Mrs. Smith's grandfather, and Charles Kent was her great-grandfather. Kent discovered the Manzanita Mine in the gold rush days, was a U. S. marshal at one time, and was murdered in the Merced area in the 1860's. Kent was waylaid and robbed on a cattle buying deal and on his return to Nevada City swore vengeance. He returned to the valley where his body showing evidence of violence was found floating in the river.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

Windy Sure "Stopped The Show"!

The other night a bunch of us were over at Judge Cunningham's watching a swell vaudeville program on his new television set. It came in fine, but just once, the screen got a little streaky.

Before the Judge could touch the knob to bring it into focus, old Windy Taylor starts fooling around with the antenna connection. "I can fix that!" he says.

Windy fixed it all right. He "stopped the show" for us, and Buzz Ellis had to come over and do a $20 repair job. I understand Windy feels so bad, that he's paying the bill and has apologized to the Judge for acting so smart.

From where I sit, it pays to practice a little restraint whenever we get the urge to meddle. Whether it's television or a person's right to enjoy a temperate glass of sparkling beer now and then—let's get a good clear "picture" of the real situation before we cause more harm than good.

WOLF & ROYER PLAYS NEVADA CITY SUNDAY

Wolf & Royer, the swaggering king-pin team of the Placer-Nevada baseball league, invades Pioneer park Sunday afternoon for what the Roseville team expects will be batting practice.

Manager Marvin Haddy and the Athletics have different plans for the visitors. Haddy says this is one game the team is pointing for and the game will not be a runaway he promises. Haddy may start Jake Goldsberry pitching and if the big fellow hurls the same kind of game he tossed to Placerville and Roseville A. C. the local chances of victory are excellent.

Latino and Grothe will be available for relief pitching service if needed. Latino may play left field at the start of the game. Jones will be in center and Haddy will patrol right.

Babe Childers will hold down the initial sack and Tony Kosinski will cover second. Bud Painter will be in the hot corner and Tiger Thompson will handle short. Ainsley Fouyer will catch.

Game time is called for 2:30 p.m.

Good Buy—all around

FRIENDS gather, look over that long bonnet and wish they had as much Fireball life as you have here.

They size up the broad windshield and narrow corner posts—and don't have to be told how these things step up "see-power."

They appraise the smart styling, the roomy interiors, the usability of luggage space—and agree you've made a buy.

But don't stop, please, with letting them look. Invite them in and introduce them to some of the special pleasures you'll know as a Buick owner.

Show them, for instance, how completely different Dynaflow Drive† is, with every mile cushioned by flowing oil and none of the rigid harshness of direct-drive cars.

Let them sample the matchless Buick ride, with all four wheels cradled on soft, coil springs and low-pressure tires made still easier-riding by extra-wide rims.

†Standard on ROADMASTER, optional at extra cost on SUPER models.

Point out how solid this Buick feels. That's what you get from husky frames, low-swung weight, and power delivered through a torque-tube instead of the rear springs.

For the truth is, this Buick's a bargain on much, much more than you can see.

It's a big buy on the solid goodness a demonstration quickly makes plain. On increasingly favorable delivery dates. On attractive price. On the kind of "deal" your Buick dealer makes.

That's why we keep saying "Better see your Buick dealer—and get that order in promptly!"

BUICK alone has all these features

Silk-smooth DYNAFLOW DRIVE* • FULL-VIEW VISION from enlarged glass area • SWING-EASY DOORS and easy access • "LIVING SPACE" INTERIORS with Deep-Cradle cushions • Buoyant-riding QUADRUFLEX COIL SPRINGING • Lively FIREBALL STRAIGHT-EIGHT POWER with SELF-SETTING VALVE LIFTERS plus HI-POISED ENGINE MOUNTINGS Low-pressure tires on SAFETY-RIDE RIMS • Cruiser-Line VENTIPORTS • DUREX BEARINGS, main and connecting rods • BODY BY FISHER

*Standard on ROADMASTER, optional at extra cost on SUPER models.

When better automobiles are built BUICK will build them

POINTERS FOR LONG DISTANCE CALLERS

How you can save money on your cross-country calls—and help us give you still faster service

1. Even before you call, you can start getting the most for your money. It's a good idea to make a list of the things you want to talk about. A few handy notes can help make sure you won't think of something you really wanted to say—after you hang up. Experienced long distance users keep paper and pencil at the telephone and make notes while they're talking, too.

2. When you place your call, you can save time all around if you give the information to your long distance operator this way: First, the name of town you're calling...then, the number if you know it, or the address. (Good idea to keep a list of the out-of-town numbers you call most frequently.) Next, if it's a person call, give the name of the one you want to talk with. The operator will then ask your name and number.

3. When you complete your call, be sure to hang up promptly—and properly. If you remember to use these pointers every time you call long distance, you'll be certain of getting the most from your call for the least money. With really efficient use of the telephone, you can pack as many words into a three-minute conversation as you can in a letter—and you'll get an answer to your questions right away.

4. Wise use of the telephone—either local or long distance—helps you get the greatest value from it. And service is constantly growing more valuable. A local call is still just a few pennies. And you can make a daytime station call from coast to coast for only $2.50, plus tax.

Veterans' News

National service life insurance has been especially designed to give veterans of World war II maximum peacetime security and protection, especially when the veteran becomes permanently disabled for an extended length of time.

Two of the most imporant features of G. I. insurance, administered by the veterans administration, are provisions for waiver of premiums on account of total disability and on income paid the veteran while totally disabled.

Waiver of premiums on account of total disability is automatically provided in all types of NSLI, including low-rate term insurance, ordinary life, 20 and 30-payment life, 20-year endowment and endowment at age 60 and 65.

Total disability is defined as any impairment of mind or body which continuously renders it impossible for the veteran to follow any substantially gainful occupation.

Waiver of premiums may be granted upon written application by the veterans after he has been totally disabled for six consecutive months, provided he became totally disabled after the date of his application for insurance, while his insurance was in force under premium paying conditions and prior to his 60th birthday.

The veteran who becomes totally disabled and makes application for waiver of premiums should continue to pay premiums regularly until he receives notice from VA of entitlement to waiver. All premiums the veteran has paid from the date the waiver is made effective will be refunded without interest.

In order to provide an income should he become totally disabled, a veteran, for a small additional premium, may insert a total disability income provision into any type G. I. insurance policy he is carrying.

The disability income feature provides payment of $5 a month for each $1,000 of insurance in force for veterans who are totally disabled for more than six consecutive months, commencing prior to the veteran's 60th birthday.

Question: Can the beneficiary or family of a veteran make premium payments on his NSLI if the veteran doesn't care to do so.

Answer: Yes, but the insured veteran has the right to change his beneficiary or beneficiaries at any time without consulting with or receiving the approval of anyone. He may also surrender his permanent NSLI policy for cash after premiums have been paid in full for one year.
